Phil May's Story of an Australian Phil May, the English artist, worked in his youth on the Bulletin of Sydney. Australia. Occasionally the young man would be assigned by the Bulletin people to the police courts, and from these sketches, now humorous and now pathetic, that were admirable. One of the best of the Bulletin sketches portrays a thin, hangdog man in the prisoners' bar talking to a very mild and sympathetic looking judge. Mr. May's story of the sketch was that the prisoner had been dragged before

British Museum Lottery The British museum was begun with $500,000 raised by a lottery scheme. Of that lottery, authorized in 1753, the archbishop of Canterbury, the lord chancellor and the speaker of the house of commons were the managers and trustees. The amount was $1,500,000. raised by fifteen dollar tickets, to provide $1,000,000 for prizes and $500,000 for the purchase of the Sloane collections and the Harleian library and for cases, house room and attendants. The operations of one "Peter Leheup Esq.," says the London Chronicle, made the lottery notorious. He fraudulently 'cornered" the tickets, 6,000 or so of them passing by his aid to a Sampson Gideon, who sold them at a premium. An inquiry instituted by the house of commons resulted in the prosecution by the attorney general of Leheup. The penalty was a fine of £1,000, but this was by no means excessive, as £40,000 was Leheup's estimated profits

China's Alum Mountain In China, about twelve miles from the village of Lionchek, there is, according to a writer in the Liverpool addition to being a natural curiosity, nearly 2,000 feet. The alum is obstone, which are first heated in grea furnaces and then in vats filled with boiling water. The alum crystallizes and forms a layer about six inches in thickness. This layer is subsequently broken up into blocks weighing about ten pounds each.

Humble Pie. We often hear of eating "humble pie." In the old hunting days of "Merrie England." when a stag was brought down, the "quarry was broken" on the spot, the choice parts of the venison being reserved for the huntsmen, while the entrails, heart, liver, etc., called in the hunting language of the day the

"numble pie." Hence to eat "numble gize abjectly. The transition from "numble pie" to "humble pie" was easy, especially in view of the significance of the word.

A Death Peigning Plant. That certain insects, birds, mammals and reptiles habitually pretend to be dead when danger threatens them is a well known fact, but it is generally be lieved that this stratagem is resorted to only by animals. In South America however, there is a plant-a species of mimosa-which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing the grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems.-London Globe.

W. E. Henley once met Robert Louis Stevenson and found his friend disor a Dumas, though he had an equipment which ought to have made hem their peer. Stevenson put his "failure' down to the weakness of his lungs. "Perhaps you are right, Louis," said Henley.
